Suit to Perfect Title.

Suit in equity has been instituted by the Sherman Apartment House Company, through Attorney George Francis Williams, against the unknown heirs-at-law of Alexander R. Watson, deceased, for the purpose of having the title of the company to a part of lot 3 in square 214, on 15th street north of L street, declared perfect of record by decree of court. It is explained that the suit affects only a small portion of the property of the company; that its title to that portion as well as to all of its property is good, but that as to the part of lot involved in the suit, its title is traced through a deed given in the year 1838 by James Wil-Hams and wife, and the record fails to show how the title of Williams and wife was de-Watson, the former record owner. On the ground of actual possession for about fifty years by those through whom the company derives its title to this small part of lot, the court is asked to declare the title complete of record.

SECOND ISSUE OF ANNUAL REPORTS

Joint Product of Citizens' Association and Associated Charities.

RESUME OF THE WORK

The second joint issue of the annual reports of the Citizens' Relief Association and the Associated Charities, embracing also extracts from the report of the Washington Sanitary Improvement Company, which was organized during the winter of 1896-97 as a subcommittee of the Citizens' Relief Association, has been published.

The interesting feature of the publication is the statement of the principles and methods of the relief association and the Associated Charities. 'The Citizens' Relief Association, it is stated, stands for material alms. It ineurs no administrative expenses itself and therefore requires that all who apply for food, fuel or shoes from its fund shall be investigated by the Associated

Personal and Social. The Associated Charities stands for personal and social service. It gives no material alms from its own general funds, but strives to bring about adequate treatment of each needy individual or family upon the basis of an adequate understanding of his needs and resources.

The methods of the Associated Charities are described in nine brief paragraphs, as First, investigation-Prompt, tactful inquiry is made by trained agents, who visit each applicant's home and, when needful, previous employers, references and earlier residences. Persons solicited for alms should request report by the Associated Charities be-ore giving. Cards for thus referring applicants are provided free. immediate aid-Emergency relief s secured at once (from the Citizens' Relief or from the "Golden Book Fund") in case of actual distress, with no delay or

'red tape."
Third, permanent betterment-An energetic effort is made to secure for each needy person exactly that kind and amount f material aid, of employment, corrective nfluence, opportunity, friendly counsel, social intercourse or gradual upbuilding which is needful for the permanent relief of his distress and the improvement of his

Co-Operative System.

Fourth, co-operation-The cordial co working of various charities, churches, relief agencies, schools and other philanthropies is brought about by (1) the division agents, who visit all these workers, enabling them to avoid working at cross purposes, and (2) by a central system of permanent case records, whereby duplication, overlapping and inadequacy are prevented and whereby, if two or more helpers are interested in the same applicant, they are informed. If one helper begins this year to aid a family which was previously assisted by another organization, these records enable the new worker to profit by his predeessor's experience.

Fifth, friendly visitors-Unpaid workers are enlisted to serve as friendly visitors to one or two families only. A friendly visitor is asked to give no material alms. Instead, for example, he may secure odd jobs or steady work for the unemployed man of a needy family, or washings and sewing if the family's head be a woman; he may promote the regular school attendance of the family's children and the improvement of their home life; advice, encouragement and his own larger resourcefulness the viswith that upbuilding which comes only from personal contact and the assurance that "somebody cares."

Sixth, provident habits-Stamp savings have been introduced by the association. ly rounds among the needlest homes, perading their occupants to save nickels, dimes and quarters regularly in attractive many to lift themselves above the requirenent of alms by laying by small sums toward future needs.

Special Work.

Seventh, direct benevolencies-A "Golden Book" is kept for accounts of subscriptions given by persons who wish to devote monev, directly and without administrative expense, to distressed families. Special appeals are also issued frequently for funds to supply an artificial limb, to establish transportation for dependents to places where care is assured, or for other special cases. The agents, resources and experience of the association are freely at the service of givers who wish to have their applied in special ways or to specified classes of need. Eighth, officialism avoided-In each division an unpaid committee, representing the managers, friendly visitors and subscribers of the association, meets weekly to pass upon all cases investigated by the paid This "division committee" is comparable to a council of physicians. It also prevents the organization from becoming superficial and careless or formal and casehardened in the treatment of needy people

Serve as Central Stations.

Ninth, neighborhood centers-Seven oficers are maintained, strategically placed, to serve as centers for such individual or organized social service as may be needed in the most neglected communities. "The Instructive Visiting Nurse Society," the 'flower guild," the "citizens' relief," the "provident fund committee," "medical dis-pensaries," church and school workers and many others use these offices as charitable 'clearing houses' and centers for philanthropy. Each office has the entire, undivided ser vice of at least one experienced paid worker, who stands ever ready to consider and befriend the most sensitive or most de-spairing sufferer. These division offices are the city's outposts for social service. Their agents represent the willingness of Washington's resourceful people to hear and alleviate the distresses of the poor. agent serves as a means of communication and a living bond between comfortably circumstanced, generous citizens and Sanitary Improvement.

The report of the Washington Sanitary Improvement Company shows the growth of that organization since March, 1898, when its assets were $35,959.05, to March, 1901, when the assets were $138,344.22, with a surplus of $4,672.76. The company was awarded a gold medal at the Paris exposition last year. In concluding his re-port, the president Surgeon General George M. Sternberg of the United States army says:

"While in this report I have laid special stress upon the success of the company from a financial point of view, it must not be supposed that we have lost sight of the philanthropic motives which led to its or-ganization. As stated in our original prospectus, 'the company aims to supply, for the present, healthful homes for the better glass of wage-earners, and in doing so hopes to establish a higher standard of sanitary dwellings at reasonable rentals for all classes."

Effects of the System. "Already our plans have been copied to a considerable extent and there is a marked tendency on the part of landlords to ouild a better class of houses for wage-earners and to be satisfied with a more reasonable rate of interest upon their investments. Moreover, the District Commissioners have taken commendable action in the interest of the public health and now require that every apartment offered for rent shall be provided with a bathroom. The regeneration of the 'slums' in the alleys of the city of Washington will be a matter requiring much time and the expenditure of large sums of money, and it is evident that no material progress can be made unless no material progress can be made unless sanitary homes at moderate rentals are available for those who now live in the insanitary alley houses, which have so same day.—Advt.

long been a reproach upon the fair name of this beautiful city. As existing laws very properly prohibit the further building of houses of any kind in the alleys of the city, the only remedy for existing condtions is that referred to in our original prospectus, as follows:

this city shall have been converted into minor streets, a measure which the company

Action of Highest Court on Street Extension Enactments.

REVIEW OF YEAR'S WORK

In his annual report to the District Commissioners yesterday afternoon Mr. A. B. Duvall, the attorney for the District of Coone already has done this a number of lumbia, referred to the new code, the Potomac flats case and the effect of the Su; preme Court decision upon the matter of street extension, with interesting com-

As encers for this term are: President, A. D. Tate; vice president, Miss H. A. Hubbard; acted, the code covers the general law. It was prepared by Walter S. Cox, for many recording secretary, A. J. While imperfections may be cences of various pleasant outings, as far found in the code, and experience may way as New Hampshire, North Carolina, demonstrate that some of its provisions re quire amendment, nevertheless, it will un-doubtedly prove of incalculable benefit to served. Miss J. E. Levering was elected president, Miss M. Thompson vice president, and Mr. Robert Anderson secretary this community. The code, it must be remembered, does not profess to embrace the entire body of existing law; there yet remains to be systematized the bulk of the The officers of the W. H. M. S. of the Union M. E. The Potomac Flats.

"Proceedings on behalf of the United States have been resumed in the case of Morris vs. United States, relating to the Potomac flats and the river front, and testimony is being taken to ascertain the amount of compensation to be allowed for the wharves, warehouses and other strucpants of the water front. From present indications until this award has been made the Commissioners will not be put in possession of the water front so as to carry into effect the act of Congress 'relative to the control of wharf property, etc.,' approved March 3, 1899. Street Extension Cases.

"The very difficult and importan subject of street extension and special assessment therefor has been finally settled, as above indicated, by the adjudication of the highest court as to the constitutionality of the law of the proceedings. The several acts of Congress on the subject provide that these assessments when confirmed by the court shall be a lien upon the land assessed, and shall be payable in four equal annual installments, with interest, at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, from the date of con-firmation until paid. The order confirming the award of the jury in these cases is sub-ject to appeal within twenty days, and until that time has expired the order is not so final as that it could be safely acted upon by the Commissioners. In most of the cases appeals were taken and a very considerable period of time elapsed before the final con-firmation on appeal; the resulting condition was, and still is, that the owner assessed in these proceedings is practically unable to escape the penalty of interest; he cannot pay the assessment; the court is not authorized to receive it, and the Commissioners are unable at once to obtain and spread upon their assessment books the assess ments confirmed by the court. It is manifest that some relief should be provided and I have the honor to suggest that you recommend that the provision respecting the charge of interest in all the street extension condemnation cases be changed, so that interest will be chargeable only from and after sixty days, or some longer time, after the final confirmation of the awards; and that there be refunded to parties who have paid under written protest interest on these assessments for such period.'

Final Judgments Rendered.

Mr. Duvall states that during the year final judgments were rendered against the District of Columbia to the amount of $25. 894.99. The most interesting of these cases was that of J. H. Rogers and John Ridout, trustees, against the District of Columbia This was an action filed May 7, 1892, for $35,000 damages for an alleged trespass by the District in wrongfully taking possession f and improving Q street, between 22d and 23d streets northwest. ae improvement was made upon the assumption that the land had been dedicated to the public in the Kalorama Heights subdivision; the fact was, however, that said portion of Q street was within the lines of the "one acre tract" belonging to George Bomford, which constituted the family burying ground. This "one acre tract" was not sold by Bomford, but was reserved in his deed to Lovett in ma Heights held only the Lovett title; the ing ground, was not acquired by them. The Bomford heirs conveyed this tract to the plaintiffs. Inasmuch as there was no acquiescence in or adoption by the owners of the Bomford burial tract of the Kaloramo Heights subdivision and they did not dedicate said tract to the public, the sole question in the case was the compensation that should be allowed them. This was adjusted at $10,000, and judgment was accordngly entered for that amount February 28 1901, upon the condition that plaintiffs should execute and deliver a deed convey-ing the land to the District of Columbia upon the payment of the judgment.

Work of Attorney's Office. In regard to the work of his office Mr.

Duvall savs: "You must think the next time before "During the year there were 352 written you act," Judge Kimball remarked, and opinions by the attorney at the request of the Commissioners, and 98 written communications to interested parties relative to Last Special Excursion to Buffalo via pending municipal matters and suits. "The questions submitted for opinion by the Commissioners embraced a great variety of subjects relating to municipal affairs; extensions, the occupation of public space pending legislation, proposed regulations and the construction of acts of Congress. "Oral opinions have been rendered in nu-merous cases submitted by various District officials concerning matters of cur-rent business arising in the administration of their respective departments.

The numerous municipal contracts and leases and bonds to secure performance of the contracts have been examined and cer-tified as to sufficiency of form, and about 100 tax deeds have been prepared."
